

Open your door to census takers and open doors for your community

All census workers carry official government badges with their name; they also have a "U.S. Census Bureau" bag. Note that the census taker will never ask to enter your home.

If no one answers at a residence, a census taker will visit the home up to three times and attempt to reach the household by phone three times. The census worker will leave a double-sided (English and Spanish) NOTICE OF VISIT in the doorway that includes a phone number for the resident to schedule an appointment.

Census data help determine the distribution of federal funds for community services and new construction, such as highways and hospitals. Every year the federal government distributes more than $400 billion to state and local governments based on the census count.
